California Mission

The first mission in California was founded by Father Junipero Serra, O.S.A., in 1769. It was the first of a series of missions that were established along the California coast. The mission was founded in the town of San Diego, which was then a small settlement. The mission was founded by Father Junipero Serra, O.S.A., who was a Spanish priest and a member of the Society of Jesus. He was one of the most important figures in the history of the California missions. He was born in Mallorca, Spain, in 1713. He came to California in 1769, and he founded the mission in San Diego. He was the first of a series of missionaries who came to California. They were all Spanish priests, and they were all members of the Society of Jesus. They were all sent to California by the Spanish government. They were all sent to California to convert the Indians to Christianity. They were all sent to California to teach the Indians the Spanish language. They were all sent to California to build churches. They were all sent to California to build schools. They were all sent to California to build a better life for the Indians. They were all sent to California to build a better life for the Spanish people. They were all sent to California to build a better life for the whole of California.
