

The front cover of the book is bound in a dark reddish-brown leather. The leather is heavily worn, with significant cracking and discoloration. There are several large, irregular holes in the leather, particularly along the right edge and bottom. The text is blind-stamped in a Gothic script, arranged in approximately 15 horizontal lines. The text is mostly illegible due to the wear and damage to the leather.